Marquee first

HA 777 greets you with a gold sign, slot reels, a red plane, and rupee chips. That collage is accurate: the lobby mixes slots, a crash/aviator-style title, and a couple of card games. It is a general casino, not a cricket desk.

Rs.77 welcome

Rs.77 posts after OTP. Wagering was 10x bonus on slots, with crash weighted lower. The plane game will not clear the meter efficiently. If you came for crash, take the bonus only after reading that weighting.

Crash and slots together

The crash title uses a familiar rising curve and auto cashout. Slots sit in a separate tab with 777-branded classics and some branded video slots. Switching tabs does not keep a single bet slip — wallets are unified, tickets are not.

Withdrawals

₹200 via UPI or Paytm. A daily count limit (not only a rupee cap) appeared after three exits in one calendar day. Plan one test plus one real exit rather than many micro-cashouts.

Noise and control

Default audio is festival-loud. A one-tap mute lives on the crash HUD but not on the slot wall — you mute in system settings instead. Session clocks exist; they reset if you kill the app, which is a weak control.

Disclosure

Provider names show on some slot tiles and not on crash. That split makes it harder to track which studio you are in. Screenshot the game header if you need to file a ticket.

Featured caveat

Featured here means the product is complete enough to review, not that crash curves are kind. Use slots to clear Rs.77 if you take it, keep crash on cash, and stop at the daily exit count.

Common questions

Poor idea if crash is weighted lower than slots. The meter we saw favoured the slot tab.

Yes. After three exits in one day a count limit appeared in our sample, separate from the ₹200 minimum.

Not as a primary desk. The lobby is slots, crash, and a short card list.
