Privacy overview for a static editorial directory built for phone-first browsing.

- Refreshed 11 June 2026

Rummy Swift is a static site. We run no user accounts or in-site wallets, and we never ask readers to make profiles just to browse the directory.

Basic browsing logs

Ordinary server, CDN, analytics, or browser-level logs may exist depending on the hosting setup. When analytics are on, they are used to gauge site performance and reader behaviour at a high level.

Links leaving the site

Once you leave this site for a third-party destination, that destination's privacy practices take over. We cannot control what external sites collect after you tap through.

Messages you send us

If you email the editorial desk, whatever you send is used only to read and reply to your message.
