Core Gameplay and Rules

- Goal: Form valid melds—sequences and sets—from your hand of cards, then declare a winning hand.
- Hand size: Typically 13 cards per player in the standard variant.
- Sequences and sets: Sequence: three or more consecutive cards of the same suit (e.g., 7♠ 8♠ 9♠). Set: three or four cards of the same rank in different suits (e.g., 8♠ 8♥ 8♦).

- Set: three or four cards of the same rank in different suits (e.g., 8♠ 8♥ 8♦).
- Pure sequence requirement: At least one pure (joker-free) sequence is generally mandatory for a valid declaration.
- Joker mechanics: Support for printed jokers and wild/jokers chosen at random per round. Jokers can substitute missing cards in sets or sequences (except to satisfy the pure-sequence rule).
- Turn order: Players draw either from the closed deck or open discard pile and must discard one card per turn.
- Winning/Scoring: In free-play modes, scoring may be for practice or for leaderboards rather than monetary penalties.

Strategy Tips for Players

- Beginner Tips
- Prioritize forming one pure sequence first; without it you can’t declare.
- Discard high-value face cards (J/Q/K) that are not part of any meld to reduce risk.
- Observe early discards — patterns reveal suits other players are not building.
- Intermediate Tactics
- Avoid picking from the discard pile unless the card clearly contributes to your melds.
- Track jokers and wildcards; they drastically change meld flexibility.
- Use safe discards: low-value, off-suit cards late in the game.
- Advanced Play
- Keep a concealed pure sequence until you’re ready to declare to avoid giving opponents cues.
- Bluff with discards to confuse skilled trackers.
- Count visible cards and infer probability distributions for needed cards in the closed deck.
